

China pays close attention to Trump's visit to Japan at the end of May

China is concerned about US President Trump's visit to Japan at the end of May and may have the opportunity to hold a summit with Chinese President Xi Jinping.

CNBC reports that Chinese officials are setting a date on Trump's schedule for overseas visits, offering the possibility of holding a summit of leaders of China and the United States outside the United States.